Fabricating, Producing and Processing

‘Fabricating, producing, and processing’ includes any operation which results in the creation or production of an article of tangible personal property, or which is a step in a process or series of operations resulting in the creation or production of such an article; the terms exclude operations not so related for the creation or production of such an article.

An operation which changes the form or state of tangible personal property is one of fabrication. Persons regularly engaged in the fabrication or production of articles for sale at retail shall collect and remit the tax on the sales price. Fabrication or production of articles for sale to wholesalers or resellers is exempt from tax. The fabricator must record on the invoice or have, on file, the reseller’s or wholesaler’s exempt number to show that the sale is an exempt sale.

The tax applies to the total charges for the fabrication or production of an article of tangible personal property made to order. For example, if a manufacturer orders a machine part from a machine shop, the tax shall be paid on the total charge for the part, including fabrication labor, even if the charges for such labor are shown separately from the cost of the materials.
